FINDINGS, CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATION TO DISMISS COMPLAINT AS THREE STRIKES BARRED

This is a civil rights action brought by Cedric McNeal, a Texas inmate appearing pro se, against state employees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff is an inmate confined in the Clements Unit of TDCJ in Amarillo, Texas. While incarcerated, Plaintiff has filed at least three prior civil actions that were dismissed as frivolous or for failure to state a claim. Plaintiff has not shown that at the time of the filing of this lawsuit, he was “under imminent danger of serious physical injury.” Therefore, it is recommended that this action be dismissed as barred by the three-strike provision of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).

The PLRA, enacted into law on April 26, 1996, amended 28 U.S.C. § 1915 as it relates to civil actions filed by prisoners in federal court. Among the changes effected by the PLRA was the inclusion of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), also known as the “three-strike” provision. Section 1915(g) precludes a prisoner from bringing a civil action in forma pauperis if on three or more prior occasions, he filed civil actions or appeals in federal court which were dismissed, either by a district court or appellate court, as being frivolous, malicious, or for failing to state a claim. See Jackson v. Johnson, 475 F.3d 261, 265 (5th Cir. 2007). When a district court dismisses a case as frivolous or for failure to state a claim, such a dismissal counts as a “strike” under 1915(g) once the judgment becomes final. See Adepegba v. Hammons, 103 F.3d 383, 387-88 (5th Cir. 1996). A district court’s dismissal is final when the prisoner has exhausted avenues of appeal or has waived any appellate rights. Id.

A prisoner is barred from proceeding in forma pauperis if he is subject to the “three-strike” provision “unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.” 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g); see also Banos v. O’Guin, 144 F.3d 883, 884 (5th Cir. 1998). The complaint must present a claim that Plaintiff is in danger of imminent serious physical injury to overcome the bar. See Carson v. Johnson, 112 F.3d 818, 822-823 (5th Cir. 1997). In applying the “three-strike” provision of 1915(g), a court may consider case dispositions that occurred prior to the effective date of the PLRA. See Adepegba, 103 F.3d at 387-88. A review of the Public Access to Court Electronic Records (“PACER”) and the Sanction Database reflects that Plaintiff has had at least three prior actions dismissed with prejudice as frivolous or for failure to state a claim, as outlined herein; thus, Plaintiff is barred from proceeding in forma pauperis as he requests. A review of PACER reflects that Plaintiff had the following prior actions dismissed with prejudice as frivolous or for failure to state a claim:

- a. No. 2:22-cv-085 (N.D. Tex.) (dismissed on April 12, 2023 as frivolous);
- b. No. 2:22-cv-249 (N.D. Tex.) (dismissed on April 12, 2023 as frivolous); and
- c. No. 2:23-cv-029 (N.D. Tex.) (dismissed on April 12, 2023 as frivolous).

Although Plaintiff accrued each of his three strikes after the initiation of this case, § 1915(b) considers the filing of three or more frivolous lawsuits to be per se abuse by a frivolous litigant. See generally Green v. Carlson, 649 F.2d 285 (5th Cir. 1981). To be sure, Plaintiff is the very definition of an abusive litigant – he has initiated no fewer than 27 separate actions in the last four years against a substantially similar group of defendants, nearly all ending in a dismissal for want of prosecution. See, e.g., No. 2:19-cv-128 (N.D. Tex.) (dismissed on June 21, 2022 for want of prosecution). Such an extended period of frivolous litigation, even though Plaintiff was not formally assigned strikes, constitutes “prior occasions” of abuse under § 1915(g). Coleman v. Tollefson, 575 U.S. 532 (2015). To conclude otherwise would undermine the purpose of the three strikes provision.

RECOMMENDATION

For the above reasons, it is the recommendation of the undersigned that the complaint filed by Plaintiff be dismissed as barred by the three strikes provision of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). This recommendation is without prejudice to Plaintiff’s right to reopen the case if he pays the $402.00 filing and administrative fees and files a motion to reopen within thirty days of the date of final judgment.
